Human trafficking is a form of modern-day slavery. Traffickers use force, fraud and coercion to control their victims. The most prominent form of human trafficking in Canada is sex trafficking. This occurs when individuals are forced or coerced into the commercial sex trade. Victims can be found in street level prostitution, escort services, small brothels, massage parlors, or at truck stops and bus stations.

Labour trafficking, or forced labour, is also a growing problem. Exploited individuals may be found along your transport route, on farms or construction sites, or in factories, fishing plants or restaurants.

Warning: Please do not approach traffickers. Call the authorities. Approaching traffickers is not only dangerous for you and their victims but could lead to problems in the eventual prosecution of traffickers.
